It is proposed that:

- Putnam Investment Management, LLC ("Putnam") will be appointed as delegated investment manager of the Fund, replacing Franklin Templeton Institutional, LLC

The change in fee structure will be effective from the date of this letter. We anticipate all other changes will be effective on or around 14 October 2026 (Effective Date), subject to completion of the required legal, operational and regulatory processes, including ASX approval.

The Fund will remain an actively managed global equity fund, with the unhedged and hedged classes continuing to use the MSCI World ex Australia Index – NR and MSCI World ex Australia (Hedged to AUD) – NR, respectively, as their benchmarks. The Fund's ARSN, legal structure and responsible entity will not change.

Who is Putnam Investment Management, LLC?

Putnam is a specialist active equity manager within the Franklin Templeton group. Established in 1937, Putnam has over $285bn in assets under management[1] and manages over $15bn in the investment capabilities that underly the Putnam Global Core strategy[1]. Putnam's investment platform comprises 77 investment professionals across Boston, London and Singapore, with a research-led investment approach focussed on generating returns primarily through stock selection rather than broad style or factor exposures.

[1] As at 31 July 2026

The Putnam Global Core strategy draws on this global equity research platform to construct a diversified core equity portfolio.

Putnam was selected because its research capability, stock-driven investment philosophy and disciplined approach to risk management are well-suited to the Fund's proposed transition to a more diversified, core global equity strategy.

Why are we making this change?

Franklin Templeton Australia regularly reviews the investment capabilities supporting its funds to assess whether they remain appropriate for investors and support the long-term sustainability of each fund.

In making the decision to transition the Fund to the Putnam Global Core strategy, the Franklin Templeton Australia Board considered a range of factors, including the appropriateness of the Fund's investment objective and benchmark, the nature and extent to which the proposed change in investment strategy will align with the Fund's investment objective and benchmark, Putnam's investment capability and long term performance track record, the expected impact on portfolio diversification and risk profile, the proposed reduction in management fee, the expected costs of the portfolio transition and potential taxation and distribution consequences for investors. Having regard to these matters, the Board considers that the proposed changes are in the best interests of unitholders.

In addition, we believe the changing nature of investor preferences for lower cost, more diversified global equity strategies and the strength of the Putnam investment capability and positive long term performance outcomes support the transition of the Fund to the Putnam Global Core strategy.

What does this mean for investors?

Investors are not required to take any action as a result of the proposed changes. The Fund's existing legal structure, ARSN and Active ETF arrangements will not change. Applications and withdrawals will continue to be processed in the ordinary course, including during the portfolio transition period, unless investors are notified otherwise.

Transaction costs

Implementation of the proposed change in strategy will require a substantial repositioning of the Fund's portfolio holdings and will give rise to transaction costs. Franklin Templeton will bear the identifiable explicit trading costs associated with implementing the portfolio transition, rather than this cost being borne by the Fund.

Taxation and distributions

The portfolio transition may result in the Fund realising capital gains and may affect the amount or timing of distributions. A special distribution may be made in connection with implementing the proposed changes.

Any distribution paid by the Fund will be reflected in the relevant distribution statement and in the annual tax information issued to investors for the financial year in which the distribution is paid. Investors should consider their own taxation circumstances and seek professional tax advice where appropriate.
