The easiest way to monitor and transact on your account is to use our secure online portal, FirstNet.

Before transacting on your account, you should be aware of the following information. We also recommend you speak to your financial adviser to discuss your needs before making a transaction.

All transactions – A completed request (which includes a correctly completed form, together with any information we may ask for to establish your identity), received in our office on a NSW business day prior to 3pm (Sydney time), will be processed as at the date of receipt of the completed request.

Debit requests – A request to debit funds from your nominated account will be submitted to your bank on the day we process your transaction. We may not be able to process your transaction if prior transactions exist on the same day.

Regular investments – Unless an option is suspended, restricted or unavailable, regular investments are accepted in accordance with the PDS current at the time of the relevant investment. A copy of the current PDS is available free of charge on request. We may terminate this facility if the direct debit fails three times in any 12-month period. Note that any changes to this facility must be received prior to the last business day prior to the 19th of the month for the change to take effect for that month.

Withdrawals – We reserve the right to delay a transaction where there may be a concern over its legitimacy or for the security of our investors. If a transaction is delayed, you will receive the unit price that applies on the day your request is processed.

Information I need to know	Transaction options	Things you need to do or be aware of How do I switch between options?
No minimum amount applies. Switching may have tax implications. Switch requests received on a NSW business day prior to 3pm (Sydney time) will be processed at that day's unit prices. In extraordinary circumstances where an option is suspended, restricted or unavailable, switches may not be processed, or may not be processed without a significant delay.		If not transacting online, please provide us with a completed Switch Form, available from our website or by calling us on 13 13 36. Alternatively, you can provide us with a signed written request. Please ensure you have read a current PDS before making your switch. If there are pending transaction(s) on your account when we receive a switch request, we may need to delay processing the switch until the pending transaction(s) are complete. If a transaction is delayed, you will receive the unit price that applies on the day your request is processed.
How do I automatically rebalance my options?
If you turn on or change your auto-rebalancing facility, it will periodically rebalance your account balance to your selected investment option weightings, excluding the FirstRate Cash Non-Auto-rebalancing option. It will also set this same allocation for your future investment selection and invest all additional investments and regular investment plan payments (if applicable) in the same investment options selected by you. See 'Can you automatically rebalance your investment options?' for more details on how the auto-rebalancing facility works. You can choose to have your account rebalanced either: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • quarterly (on the first business day after 14 February, 14 May, 14 August and 14 November), or • annually (on the first business day after 14 May each year). 		Investments in FirstRate Cash Non-Auto-rebalancing, suspended, restricted or unavailable investment options are excluded from rebalancing, which means they will not be affected by the auto-rebalancing facility. Because auto-rebalancing switches your account balance between investment options, buy/sell spreads apply. If you request a transaction that is not in line with your selected investment weightings, we will cancel your auto-rebalancing facility. There are also other circumstances where the auto-rebalancing facility may be cancelled. Generally, however, you can turn it back on by nominating your new selected investment option weightings. Where the 20th falls on a non-NSW business day, funds will be directed on the NSW business day immediately preceding the 20th and the unit price for the NSW business day following the 20th will be used. Your regular withdrawal plan will be cancelled or reduced if the withdrawal will reduce the balance of any option you are withdrawing from to zero.		Please obtain a Regular Withdrawal Plan Form from our website or by calling 13 13 36. Note: Aspects of the regular withdrawal plan need careful consideration, particularly in an option that is subject to volatility. If an option is suspended, restricted or unavailable, your regular withdrawal plan from this option will cease.
How do I change my personal details?
Please contact us on 13 13 36 and advise your change. Receiving income

You may receive income from your investment. For tax purposes we may attribute income to you which will form part of your assessable income and may include amounts such as interest, dividends and realised capital gains.

Distributions are based on the number of units you hold in a particular option, in proportion to the number of units held by all unitholders, at the distribution date. You must hold units on the day prior to any distributions being paid in order to be eligible for a distribution. Distributions are not pro-rated for investors who were not unitholders for the whole period. The type of income you receive depends on the asset classes in which each option invests.

Geared – global share	Half-yearly (D, J)

1 (S) September, (D) December, (M) March, (J) June.

2 The Daintree Core Income, Janus Henderson Diversified Credit, Franklin Australian Absolute Return Bond and Macquarie Income Opportunities options distribute income monthly.

3 The Pendal Monthly Income Plus option distributes income monthly.

4 The Blackrock Global Liquid Alternatives option distributes income yearly.

5 The Acadian Global Managed Volatility Equity option distributes income half-yearly. The Merlon Australian Share Income option distributes income monthly.

6 The Talaria Global Equity option distributes income quarterly.

7 The ClearBridge RARE Infrastructure Value option distributes income quarterly.

We normally pay distributions within 14 days of the calculation date. The distribution calculation dates are available on cfs.com.au/distribution-amounts or by calling Investor Services on 13 13 36. In some circumstances, we may vary the distribution timing and frequency without notice to investors (for example, to take into account days that fall on a public holiday). While the options aim to distribute at the frequency stated above, from time to time, individual options may not have enough income to distribute each period. For example, when interest rates are low, Enhanced Cash options may not be able to distribute every month.

What are your distribution choices?

You can choose to have your distributions:

- automatically reinvested, with no transaction costs payable. The additional units are purchased using the net asset value per unit applicable immediately after the distribution, or
- directly credited to your Australian financial institution account.

Please nominate your choice on your application form. Your nominated distribution method will apply to all the options in which you invest. If you do not make a choice, then your distributions will be automatically reinvested. If the bank account details you have supplied for your distributions are invalid, then after making reasonable attempts to contact you, we will reinvest the distributions back into your existing options within 28 days.

In extraordinary circumstances, where an option is suspended, restricted or unavailable, we may not permit some or all of the income distributions to be reinvested.

If we receive notification of an investor's death, all distributions will automatically reinvest until we receive further instructions.

What happens if you invest just before a distribution?

Please note that the unit price of a particular option will fall by the amount of any distribution (per option) immediately after the distribution is paid.

If you invest just prior to a distribution, then that distribution effectively represents a return of your investment.

Depending on your circumstances, this may have certain taxation implications and we recommend that you speak with a financial adviser or tax adviser to determine the impact of the distribution on your investment. Distribution dates should be checked prior to transacting on your account.

Transactions, unit pricing and auto-rebalancing

How are your transactions processed?

Applications

To ensure that your application is processed efficiently, it is important that you complete all sections of the application form and provide us with all documentation we request (refer to the checklist in the application forms section).

In the event that certain information is not provided, the following will apply:

- If no investment option or an invalid option is selected for management cost rebates to be paid, we will credit any applicable rebate to the most conservative option, as outlined in the application forms section.
- If no investment option or an invalid option is selected for deducting the adviser service fee, we will deduct from the most conservative option, as outlined in the application forms section.
- Unless otherwise specified, additional deposits and applicable fees will be invested in line with your most recent transaction, excluding any allocation to a regular investment plan.

In certain situations, after receiving your application form (and related information) and application monies, we may not be able to proceed, for whatever reason, with your request, and issue the product immediately, until the required information is received. In these situations we shall:

- attempt to contact you and/or your financial adviser (if applicable)
- hold your application monies in a non-interest bearing account until we receive the required information.

Funds are held for a maximum period of 30 days (in a non-interest bearing account) commencing on the day we receive the funds. After this period your application monies will be returned to the source of payment.

At the time we process your application, your original application monies will be divided by the applicable unit price, to determine the number of units to be issued to you.

The unit price you receive is the unit price which applies on the day we receive your completed application, provided the request is received before 3pm (Sydney time) on any NSW business day. Completed applications received after 3pm will receive the following day's entry unit price. For funds received electronically, either by direct debit, EFT, BPAY or transfers from another institution, the unit price used will be the one effective the date the funds are received in our bank account.

In extraordinary circumstances, we may suspend or restrict applications and we may also reject applications at our discretion.

If we receive an application which includes a suspended, restricted or unavailable option, we will invest that allocation into the First Sentier Strategic Cash option and notify you with your confirmation.

Switches

A switch is treated as a withdrawal from one option and an investment into another. Funds are withdrawn at the exit unit price and the new units invested at the entry unit price. These two transactions are completed on the same business day, unless your switch is from or into a suspended, restricted or unavailable option. In this case, your switch may not be processed and, if any payment is to be made, then the exit price used to calculate this payment will be the one determined at the time the payment is made.

If your switch request includes an investment into a suspended, restricted or unavailable option, we will contact you to confirm your transaction.

If you request a transaction of a specific dollar amount from your account, market volatility could impact the funds available. If there are insufficient funds to process your transaction, we will contact you to discuss alternatives such as switching by percentage or units. This could result in a delay in actioning your transaction. If you are submitting this transaction online, we require 10% of your balance to remain in the option/s to ensure we can process your transaction.

When switching, you must ensure that you have a copy of the current PDS, which you should retain for future reference.

Switching may have capital gains tax implications.

Withdrawals

This is a complex area and has tax implications. If you need further explanation regarding any of the terms used in this section, you should discuss this with your financial adviser.

Withdrawals cannot be processed until application monies are cleared and all necessary documentation is provided.

We reserve the right to delay a transaction where there may be a concern over its legitimacy or for the security of our investors. If a transaction is delayed, you will receive the unit price that applies on the day your request is processed.

In the event that certain information is not provided, the following will apply:

- If no payment method is selected, a cheque will be provided.
- If no investment options are selected for withdrawal, we will redeem in line with your existing investment weightings.
- Payments can only be made to Australian financial institutions. Overseas accounts will not be accepted. If a request is made to transfer funds to an overseas account, a cheque will be provided.

When we receive your completed withdrawal request, together with any documentation that we may require to establish your identity, the proceeds are calculated at the next determined exit unit price. In extraordinary circumstances, we may suspend withdrawals.

Withdrawals are normally processed within seven working days of receiving a request from you. Longer periods may apply from time to time.

Unless the option is suspended, restricted or unavailable, you can withdraw from the option in accordance with our normal processes.

Where an option is suspended, restricted or unavailable, we may not process withdrawal requests. Further, where an option is not liquid, we cannot allow investors to withdraw from the option unless we make an offer to withdraw. There is no obligation for us to make such an offer and if we do, investors may only be able to withdraw part of their investment. Any decisions whether to process withdrawals or partial withdrawals will be made in the best interests of investors as a whole, and if any payment is to be made, then the exit price used to calculate this payment will be the one determined at the time the payment is made.

If you request a transaction of a specific dollar amount from your account, market volatility could impact the funds available. If there are insufficient funds to process your transaction, we will contact you to discuss alternatives such as withdrawing by percentage or units. This could result in a delay in actioning your transaction. If you are submitting this transaction online, we require 10% of your balance to remain in the option/s to ensure we can process your transaction.

Transaction cut-off times

If we receive your completed transaction request in our office before 3pm (Sydney time) on a NSW business day, we will process your transaction using that day's unit price.

If we receive your completed transaction request after the cut-off time shown above, we will process your transaction using the following business day's unit price.

Transaction processing and unit prices

We calculate unit prices each NSW business day. If your complete investment, switch or withdrawal request is received by the relevant cut-off time, you will receive the next determined unit price.

The next determined unit price for any NSW business day is calculated at the close of trading of all markets on that day. Therefore, the next determined unit price is not known until the following business day. It is important to consider this when making your transaction request.

Note: If you ask for a unit price, accrued interest or investment valuation, we can provide a historical unit price, interest amount or investment valuation only.

How are unit prices calculated?

When you invest, you are allocated a number of units in each option you have selected. Each of these units represents an equal part of the market value of the portfolio of investments that the option holds. As a result, each unit has a dollar value, or 'unit price'.

The unit price is calculated by taking the total market value of all of an option's assets on a particular day, adjusting for any liabilities and then dividing the net option value by the total number of units held by all investors on that day. Although your unit balance in the option will stay constant (unless there is a transaction on your account), the unit price will change according to changes in the market value of the investment portfolio or the total number of units issued for the option. We determine the market value of each option based on the information we have most recently available.

We may exercise certain discretions that could affect the unit price of units on application or withdrawal in each option. The types of discretions that we may exercise, in what circumstances, our policies on how we exercise the discretions and the reasons why we consider that our policies are reasonable, are set out in our Unit Pricing Permitted Discretions Policy. If we exercise a discretion in a way that departs from the policies set out in our Unit Pricing Permitted Discretions Policy, we are required to keep a record of this in a Register of Exceptions. You can obtain a copy of our Unit Pricing Permitted Discretions Policy or Register of Exceptions, or both, free of charge, by calling us on 13 13 36.

What is the difference between entry and exit unit prices?

There may be a difference between the entry and exit unit price for an option quoted on any business day. This difference relates to the option's buy/sell spread.

So existing investors do not continually bear the transaction costs resulting from new investments or withdrawals that you make, all investors pay a set, average amount (a 'buy/sell' spread) when they transact. This is calculated according to the particular types of investments an option holds. Not all new investments or withdrawals cause transaction costs to be incurred by an option; for example, where an investment does not incur any significant costs, or when a new investment coincides with a withdrawal by someone else. However, to be consistent, we generally apply buy/sell spreads to all new investments and withdrawals from an option. Refer to the Fees and other costs section in the PDS for the buy/sell spreads that apply to each option.

Unit pricing adjustment policy

There are a number of factors used to calculate unit prices. The key factors include asset valuations, liabilities, debtors, the number of units on issue and, where relevant, transaction costs. When the factors used to calculate the unit price are incorrect, an adjustment to the unit price may be required. We generally use a variance of 0.30% (0.05% for a cash investment option) in the unit price before correcting the unit price.

If a unit pricing error is greater than or equal to these variances, we will:

- compensate your account balance if you have transacted on the incorrect unit price or make other adjustments as we may consider appropriate, or
- where your account is closed, we will send you a payment if the amount of the adjustment is more than $20.

These tolerance levels are consistent with regulatory practice guidelines and industry standards. In some cases, we may compensate where the unit pricing error is less than the tolerance levels.

Can you automatically rebalance your investment options?

What is auto-rebalancing?

The auto-rebalancing facility automatically realigns your account balance to your selected investment option weightings. It works by switching amounts between investment options, excluding the FirstRate Cash Non-Auto-rebalancing option. Your first rebalance will occur on the business day after we process your valid request to turn on the facility, and thereafter you can select whether auto-rebalancing applies quarterly or annually.

As part of a rebalance, we total the difference (in absolute terms) between the latest balance of each investment option and the balance you would hold applying your selected weightings. Where the amount of the difference is greater than 1% of your account balance, we will realign your investment options to your selected weightings. We do this by performing a switch transaction.

If you turn on your auto-rebalancing facility, we will also set your future investment selection and regular investment plan or regular withdrawal plan (if applicable) to this same investment option weighting. This means that any additional investments or redemptions you make will be processed in line with your selected auto-rebalancing investment option weightings.

For example: You initially invest into investment option A and option B. Your initial investment is 30% in investment option A and 70% in investment option B, and you set the auto-rebalancing facility to switch to these weightings annually. Unless you tell us otherwise, any additional investments you make during the year will also be allocated 30% to option A and 70% to option B. On the annual auto-rebalancing date, your investment option weightings will almost certainly have changed because of the different performance profile of each investment option. Assume option A is now worth 35% and option B is worth 65% of your account balance. The auto-rebalancing facility will switch an amount between investment option A and option B, rebalancing your account to your nominated 30%:70% investment option weighting.

Fees and costs associated with auto-rebalancing

Although there are no fees associated with using the auto-rebalancing facility, the process of withdrawing from one investment option and investing into another investment option may involve a cost in the form of a buy/sell spread. Please refer to the PDS, section 5 for further details on buy/sell spreads.

When auto-rebalancing can be cancelled

We will immediately turn off your auto-rebalancing facility if:

- you tell us to invest an additional investment and select a different investment option weighting
- you change your future investment selection to a different investment option weighting
- you make a withdrawal in different proportions to your selected investment option weightings
- you switch all or part of your account balance between investment options, or
- an investment option you hold becomes suspended, restricted or unavailable.

If your auto-rebalancing facility is cancelled, generally you can turn it back on and nominate new investment option weightings. The rebalancing will then exclude your investments in FirstRate Cash

Non-Auto-rebalancing or any suspended, restricted or unavailable investment option(s). We will notify you of your new selected investment option weightings for your auto-rebalancing facility (and your future investment selection) or if your auto-rebalancing facility has been cancelled.

Using the example above, if you make an additional investment and instruct us to invest 50% in investment option A, 50% in investment option B, we will cancel your auto-rebalancing because this allocation is different to your selected auto-rebalancing weightings. You may wish to re-establish the facility and provide us with new weightings.

We recommend you consult your financial adviser before choosing to use the auto-rebalancing facility, as there may be tax consequences.

Regulatory information

What is the Constitution?

Each option is governed by a Constitution. Together with the Corporations Act 2001 (Cth) and some other laws, the Constitution sets out the terms and conditions under which the option operates and the rights, responsibilities, powers, discretions and duties of the responsible entity and investors. The Constitution deals with a number of issues including:

- your rights as a holder of units
- the method of dealing with complaints about the option
- investment option termination
- our broad powers to invest, borrow, receive fees and other payments and generally manage the option.

The Constitution states that your liability is limited to the amount you paid for your units, but the courts are yet to determine the effectiveness of provisions of this kind. It gives us a number of rights, including a number of discretions relating to unit pricing and option termination. You can obtain a copy of the Constitution and Unit Pricing Permitted Discretions Policy, free of charge, by calling us on 13 13 36.

We may alter the Constitution if we, as the responsible entity, reasonably consider that the amendments will not adversely affect investors' rights. Otherwise, we must obtain investors' approval at a meeting of investors.

We may retire or be required to retire as the responsible entity (if investors vote for our removal).

Your rights to requisition, attend and vote at meetings are mainly contained in the Corporations Act.

Can you appoint an agent?

As an investor, you are entitled to appoint an agent to act on your behalf. This person could be your financial adviser, solicitor, or someone else that you trust to act on your behalf. We will only accept your appointment of an agent if, among other things, we have successfully established the identity of this agent. To do this you will need to complete an Appointment of Agent Form.

If you have more than one agent or signatory and you are a non-individual investor (e.g. a company, trust or other entity type), you can appoint a verifying officer to identify your agents or signatories. To appoint a verifying officer, you will need to complete the Verifying Officer Form. Copies of these forms can be obtained from our website or by calling 13 13 36.

Note that by appointing an agent to act on your behalf, you are giving that person full authority over your account.

What are our reporting requirements?

If any option is a disclosing entity under the Corporations Act, the option is subject to regular reporting and continuous disclosure obligations. Copies of documents we lodge with the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC) to fulfil these obligations may be obtained from, or inspected at, an ASIC office.

You also have a right to request a copy of certain documents from us when they become available, and we must send you a copy (free of charge) as soon as practicable and in any event within five days. Your request will be fulfilled in the way you choose – by email or post, or you can collect it from our offices. The documents are:

- the annual financial report for the option most recently lodged with ASIC
- any half-year financial report lodged with ASIC and any continuous disclosure notice given for the option after the lodgement of the annual financial report for the option and before the date of this document.

Custody

A professional custodian generally holds the assets of each option. The custodian is appointed by CFSIL and is responsible only to us. It is the custodian's role to hold the assets in the options on behalf of investors (however, for options where a prime broker has been appointed, assets will be held by the prime broker).

The custodian may be changed from time to time, and we may change the custodian where we are satisfied that the proposed new custodian meets all regulatory requirements.

You will not be notified of a change in custodian. If the custodian is another company in CFSIL and other CFS entities, then we would have to:

- satisfy ASIC that we are able to separate each option's assets from our own, and
- satisfy ourselves that holding each option's assets in this way would be cost-effective for investors.

If you would like details of our custodian, please contact us.

Terms and conditions

These terms and conditions apply when you open an account with us and when you instruct us by phone, or electronically or when you access FirstNet. It is important that you read them carefully before you provide us with instructions so that you know what will apply to your transactions.

Limitation of liability

- All other representations and warranties relating to these services are excluded except for any term that is implied by law, which is taken to be included in these terms and conditions. To the extent permitted by law, our liability for breach of that term is limited to resupplying the service or paying the reasonable cost of having the service provided again. However, our liability may be greater where we are negligent or fraudulent, but this liability may be reduced to the extent that you caused or contributed to the loss.
- Subject to the paragraph above, to the extent permitted by law, we are not liable in any way for any losses that you suffer through using or supplying information electronically, by phone or FirstNet.
- You acknowledge and agree that we will not be liable to you for any loss you suffer (including consequential loss) caused by an inability to transact with you or other persons including where we comply with any law or legislation or choose to exercise a discretion available to us, including in circumstances where we reasonably believe that you are a Proscribed Person. 'Inability to transact' may include delaying, blocking, freezing or refusing to process a transaction or ceasing to provide you with a product or service. A 'Proscribed Person' means any person or entity who CFSIL or any other CFS entity reasonably believes to be (i) in breach of the laws of any jurisdiction prohibiting money laundering or terrorism financing, or (ii) on a list of persons with whom dealings are proscribed by Australian laws or the laws of another recognised jurisdiction. A 'Proscribed Person' includes any person or entity who CFSIL or any other CFS entity reasonably believes to act on behalf, or for the benefit of, a person or entity referred to in (i) and/or (ii).

- You agree to use these services only in accordance with these terms and conditions and your other legal obligations. We are not liable for, and you release and indemnify us against, any liabilities, claims, losses or costs arising from our acting in accordance with any communication that we receive by phone, or electronically about your account or investments with us or arising from the use of FirstNet by you or any person using your Member ID (OIN) and password.

Use of phone and electronic communications

Security of phone and electronic requests

- We have procedures in place to reduce the risk of fraud, but we cannot guarantee that someone trying to impersonate you will not contact us about your account and change your details or make a withdrawal. We may dispute liability for any losses which happen because we have acted on instructions that you have not authorised but which appear to be authorised by you.
- All our customers are automatically given access to communicate with us by phone and electronically. You need to tell us if you do not want us to accept any future instructions over the phone or electronically by sending us an original signed request.
- We will block access to your account for phone and electronic instructions by the second business day after we receive that request. Until this happens, these terms and conditions for phone and electronic communications will still apply to your account.
- If you are a joint account holder, any of the joint account holders may give us instructions about the account.
- If the account holder is a company, any director of the company may give us instructions about the account, provided we have previously been notified in writing of the lists of directors.

Information received by phone or electronically

- If the details that we receive over the phone or electronically do not match the details that we have previously received for the account, then we will not proceed with the request.
- We also will not process a request if the instructions we receive are incomplete or illegible or appear to contain errors. This is to ensure that the transaction we perform is exactly what you were requesting.
- We can change or cancel these terms for phone and electronic communications at any time as long as we give you 14 days written notice.
- Apart from these terms and conditions, we may have other requirements for receiving instructions from time to time. You will be notified if this affects you or your request.
- If you do not accept changes to these terms, you may permanently stop instructing us by phone or electronically without fee or charge by providing us with an original signed request, as outlined under the heading 'Security of phone and electronic requests'.

Use of FirstNet

Member ID (OIN) and password

- You must keep your Member ID (OIN) and password secret. You should not disclose them to anyone or record them in a way which could affect their confidentiality.
- If you give someone else permission to use your Member ID (OIN) and password, you are responsible for any transactions they perform or changes they make to your account information, or anything that happens because you gave them that permission.
- Anyone can access FirstNet if they have a valid Member ID (OIN) and password. This means that if someone else has your Member ID (OIN) and password, they can access your account information and make transactions, even if you have not authorised them to use your Member ID (OIN) and password. We are not responsible to you and will not pay for any losses that may happen because we acted on any instructions received through FirstNet which used your Member ID (OIN) and password, whether or not these instructions were authorised by you.
- You must tell us immediately if you think that someone has accessed your account without your permission or if you think that someone else may know your Member ID (OIN) and password. We will stop access to the account and issue a new password.

Access to FirstNet

- You can tell us if you want to permanently stop using FirstNet by sending us an original signed request. We will block FirstNet access to your account on the second business day after we receive that request. Until this happens, these terms and conditions will still apply to your account.
- We will do our best to maintain the operation of this service in accordance with the information you have received about it. However, we may suspend or restrict your access to the service at any time including, but not limited to, in circumstances where we have reasonable certainty of unauthorised transactions or fraud.
- We do not guarantee or warrant that the use of FirstNet will be uninterrupted or error free. We also do not warrant that it is suitable for any particular purpose or has any performance, functionality or security features, except what we are legally obliged to provide.
- We will take all reasonable steps to make sure that the information that you access through FirstNet is up-to-date and correct.
- When you are joint account holders, and one of you registers for FirstNet transaction access, both of you are taken to have agreed to any transactions on your account through FirstNet.

Transacting on FirstNet

- 'Transaction access' means the ability to review, modify or update your contact details and accounts online; apply for, withdraw and switch units between funds or options and set up automatic facilities or features.
- You agree to use this service in accordance with these terms and conditions.
- We will only act on transaction requests that are complete and received in full, are legible and do not appear to contain any error.
- For FirstNet, a transaction reference onscreen is evidence that the communication has been completed.
- We are not liable for any losses or delays that occur because we did not receive an instruction.
- If there are any government fees and charges incurred by us in relation to your use of FirstNet, we can debit these from your account.

- You must only use FirstNet to obtain information that you are properly authorised to access and you must use this information only for lawful purposes.
- We can change these terms and conditions at any time by placing the changes on our website. When making any changes, we will act reasonably and, so far as possible, in accordance with prevailing market conditions and regulatory requirements for accounts of this type at that time. We may ask you to read and accept any amended terms and conditions so you can keep using FirstNet, but, unless otherwise required by law, once we have placed them on the website, they are binding on you, even if you have not read them. If you do not accept these changes, you may permanently stop using FirstNet without fee or charge by providing us with an original signed request, as outlined under the heading 'Access to FirstNet'.

Adviser Transaction Authority Conditions

By granting your financial adviser transaction authority, you authorise the named adviser, and their authorised delegates, access to the details of your account(s) to perform the following activities using our services on your behalf:

- make an additional investment, set up or modify a regular investment plan, switch investment options and nominate the investment option from which account based fees (including adviser service fees) will be deducted
- cancel an adviser service fee
- modify personal and account details, excluding bank account details
- modify investment selection and frequency, including auto-rebalancing
- withdraw an investment to your pre-nominated bank account.

If your circumstances change and this authority is no longer consistent with your needs, you have the ability to revoke your authorisation.

CFS will generally process transactions under this authority until the second business day after we receive a notification, from you, amending or revoking this authority.

CFS can, at any time, remove an adviser or refuse to record or deal with an adviser nominated on your account.

Any adviser you nominate (as your adviser, from time to time) will be authorised under this authority, (even if this adviser transfers to a new dealer group without notice to you).

Use of CFS' online facilities is subject to specific terms and conditions (including e-Post declarations and FirstNet Adviser terms and conditions). These are available on each respective internet site. At our complete discretion, we can refuse access or suspend access to CFS online facilities.

We can cancel or vary these conditions by giving you not less than seven (7) days prior written notice.

We recommend that you check these terms and conditions on a regular basis. These terms and conditions include any instructions for using these services provided to you or placed on our website from time to time.

Can we vary these terms and conditions?

A Changes we can make

We may from time to time:

- add fees or charges within the limits prescribed by the fund Constitution
- remove fees or charges
- change the amount of any fee or charge within the limits prescribed by the fund Constitution
- vary the distribution timing and frequency
- vary or cancel the terms for use of phone or electronic communications and for transacting on FirstNet, and
- vary or cancel your direct debit arrangement.

Each of the changes in paragraphs (a) to (f) is a separate right and this clause A is to be read as if such change was a separately expressed right.

B Changes to terms and conditions

We may from time to time change any of the terms and conditions to:

- a change the frequency with which fees are debited
- b add new concessions or benefits
- c change or remove any concessions or benefits
- d adopt or implement any legal requirement, decision, recommendation, regulatory guidance or standard of any court, tribunal, ombudsman service or regulator
- e accommodate changes in the needs or requirements of our customers, such as new product features or services
- f correct errors, inconsistencies, inadvertent omissions, inaccuracies or ambiguities
- g in the event that any part of the terms and conditions contained or referred to in the PDS are found to be void or unenforceable, achieve (as far as possible) the intention of the original provision without it being void or unenforceable
- h bring us into line with our competitors, industry or market practice or best practice in Australia or overseas, or
- i reflect changes in technology or our processes including our computer systems.

Each of the changes in paragraphs (a) to (i) is a separate right and this clause B is to be read as if such change was a separately expressed right.

C Without limiting our rights under clauses A and/or B, we may from time to time change any of the terms and conditions contained or referred to in the PDS.

How will we notify you of changes to your account features and terms and conditions?

The responsible entity may change any of the terms and conditions contained or referred to in the PDS and, where a change is material, the responsible entity will notify you in writing within the timeframes provided for in the relevant legislation.

Not happy with the change?

Unless the option is suspended, restricted or unavailable, you can withdraw from the option in accordance with our normal processes if we make a change which you do not like.
