

Compassionate Grounds Form

Guidelines

Your super is designed to provide for you in retirement, so generally you're unable to access it until you permanently retire or meet a condition of release. However, there are some circumstances where you may be able to access your super early, and needing money to pay for medical treatment or unpaid expenses in particular situations (compassionate grounds) is one of them.

How do I apply to access my super on compassionate grounds?

Step 1: Check you're eligible for early release of super on compassionate grounds (more information in below section 'Do I qualify for early release of my super on Compassionate Grounds?).

Step 2: Apply online with the Australian Taxation Office (ATO) for the early release of your super on compassionate grounds.

Step 3: Print and complete this form from page 3, after receiving your approval letter from the ATO. The ATO will also let us know if your request is approved, however we still need this form to process your request.

Step 4: Provide proof of your identity (more information on page 5) by:

- Verifying your identity electronically using your current driver's licence or passport number, or
- Providing certified paper copies of your proof of identify documents.

Please return your completed form to us via either:

Before applying for release of super for compassionate grounds it's important to consider:

- · How it'll impact your retirement.
- · Any tax implications.
- Any impacts it may have on benefits you're receiving i.e. Centrelink, Work Cover.
- How it'll impact your insurance cover.

What are compassionate grounds?

There are broadly five different 'compassionate grounds' under which you may be able to access your super. These are:

- 1 to enable you to make a payment on a loan to prevent foreclosure of a mortgage on your principal place of residence, or
- 2 to modify your principal place of residence or vehicle, or accommodate your special needs or those of your dependant, arising from severe disability, or
- 3 to pay for expenses associated with your palliative care, in the case of your impending death. (Alternatively, if you need to pay for your own palliative care, you can request access to your super directly with your super fund due to a terminal medical condition. Payments under terminal medical condition are tax-free while payments under compassionate grounds are taxable); or
- 4 to pay for expenses associated with your dependant's:
 - · palliative care in the case of impending death, or
 - · death, or
 - · funeral, or
 - burial.
- 5 to pay for medical treatment or medical transport for you or your dependant.

Medical treatment must be necessary to:

- treat a life threatening illness or injury, or
- alleviate acute or chronic pain, or
- alleviate an acute or chronic mental disturbance, and
- the treatment is not readily available to you, or your dependant, through the public health system.

Do I qualify for early release of my super on Compassionate Grounds?

The ATO will assess your application. The ATO website lists specific conditions that relate to each of the five compassionate grounds listed above. The ATO can only approve a release of your super if you meet the relevant specific conditions, as well as all of the general conditions listed below:

- Unpaid expenses you must not have paid the expenses relating to one of the relevant five grounds listed above. The ATO can only approve compassionate release of super to help you with unpaid expenses. If you've already paid the expense, for example by obtaining a loan, using a credit card or borrowing money from family or friends, you don't meet the eligibility requirements.
- Super is your last resort you must not be able to afford to pay part or all of the expenses without accessing your super. That is, you can't pay the expense by:
 - a getting a loan,
 - b using your savings, or
 - c selling shares, investments or assets.
- Residency/citizenship you must be a citizen or permanent resident of Australia or New Zealand.

For further information, refer to the ATO website www.ato.gov.au or call the ATO on 13 10 20.

How much can I withdraw?

You can withdraw up to your entire superannuation account balance under compassionate grounds, however the ATO will determine the amount that's released. The amount released under compassionate grounds must be:

- 1 A single lump sum, not exceeding an amount that's reasonably required.
- 2 In the case of preventing foreclosure on a mortgage for the home where you live, the amount released in each 12-month period must not exceed three months of repayments plus 12 months of interest.

If the amount approved by the ATO is larger than the amount you have in your super account, your account will be closed. You'll be paid the full balance less any applicable fees and taxes. You will need to consider the impacts on any insurance, and ongoing superannuation contributions from employers, if you withdraw your entire balance.

How much will I be taxed?

We may be required to deduct tax from your compassionate grounds payment. The tax payable will depend on the components of the payment being released and your age. Any payments you receive before reaching your preservation age will generally be taxed. For example, if you're under 60 years old your withdrawal is likely to be taxed between 17% and 22%.

If you're age 60 or over, no tax is payable on your compassionate grounds benefit. Generally, if you've reached your preservation age but are under age 60 and have not previously accessed your super you're also not likely to pay any tax due to the low-rate cap applying to the amount. For more information visit www.cfs.com.au or call us on 13 13 36.

What is the impact on insurance cover?

- If your account is closed any insurance cover attached to your account will end.
- If your insurance cover ends, you will only be able to claim for an insured event which occurred before your cover ended
- If you'd like to keep your insurance cover, you can choose to keep enough money in your account to pay the premiums for your cover.
